

How to Fight Food Insecurity in Your Community

Under Trump's billionaire-first budget, roughly 4 million people each month will lose some or all of their SNAP food assistance once the new changes take effect. This comes as Trump and Republicans left SNAP beneficiaries in limbo for weeks because the White House refused to support working families. The reality is clear: Trump sold out working families in exchange for tax cuts for his billionaire friends, and now communities across the country are feeling the squeeze just as we head into the Thanksgiving season, when food insecurity hits hardest.

As people across the country continue to face uncertainty and tough financial decisions, it's more important than ever to show up for our neighbors. Whether it's hosting a local drop-off, volunteering at a food bank, or spreading the word online, every action helps ensure no one goes hungry this holiday season. Learn how you can support your community below.

How to Host a Food Drive

ATTEND A TRAINING

Join us for a Community Food Drive Training to learn how to organize food drives and collections in your community. We will be hosting trainings on Tuesday, November 18, Wednesday, November 19, and Thursday, November 20. Ready to help? Sign up here.

FOOD DRIVE CHECKLIST

- ☐ Coordinate With Partners
- ☐ Decide How You Want to Collect Food
- ☐ Assess Programming Needs
- ☐ Organize Drop-Off
- ☐ Engage With Your Community
- ☐ Follow Up

Spread the Word

Donald Trump can't hide from the damage he's done to the economy — prices on nearly everything, including groceries, rent, and utilities, are soaring, all while jobs are disappearing. Make no mistake: people are paying attention and demanding accountability. Help get the word out by engaging with your community and amplifying the message online.

SHARE YOUR STORY

Impacted by cuts? It's important to share stories to show the real impact this is having on families across the country. Share your story here. Learn more about our submission terms.

POST ON SOCIAL MEDIA

Find content in our toolkit and spread the word across social media.